Council Supports New County Proposal To Lower Taxes for City Services

by Bill Rowland

Greenbelt taxpayers may start getting a substantial reduction in their combined city and county property tax rates — perhaps as much as 55 cents less by fiscal year 1986 — if county council passes legislation just proposed by County Executive Parris Glendening. This was the good news received by city council during its regular meeting on October 17.

For years, Greenbelt and others of the 28 municipalities within Prince Georges County have complained that their citizens have been paying county property taxes for services not received. In the case of Greenbelt, for example, property owners pay city property taxes and in turn receive city-provided police protection and street maintenance. But at the same time, those property owners are also paying county property taxes and receiving very little if any county-provided police service or road work.

Looked at from another direction, Greenbelt property owners have been helping to pay for the cost of county services for property owners in unincorporated parts of the county.

Over the last few years, the county has made annual grants to several municipalities, including Greenbelt, as partial reimbursement for this double taxation. This year's Maryland General Assembly put a requirement on Prince Georges and six other counties to set up "tax differential" plans by next July 1. Glendening's legislative proposal is intended to meet this requirement. Under his plan, the rebates to municipalities would be stopped, and instead the property owners in those municipalities would be sent smaller county tax bills, with rates fitted to the amounts of services actually provided by the county.

Glendening estimates that for a city such as Greenbelt, which provides "full services" to its residents, the decrease (to be phased in over the next two years) would amount to about 64 cents less in fiscal year 1986 than the county property tax rate to be charged property owners in the unincorporated areas. He also estimates that a full-services city would have to increase its own city property tax rate by about nine cents above its rate for this year, in order to make up for the rebate no longer received from the county. The net change, according to Glendening's estimates, would be a decrease of about 55 cents in the total property tax rate paid to city and county by the property owners in such a city.

Glendening's draft bill includes a complex formula for determining the amount of tax differential to be granted to each municipality. Factors to be taken into account include the net cost of each county operating service, the percent of each service not being provided within the municipality, and the state income tax revenues received by the municipality.

If a municipality and the county cannot agree as to level of service provided, the matter will go to a three-member arbitration board. One member of the board will be selected by the county, the second member will be chosen by the municipality, and those two members will name the third member. The board's role will be advisory, with the final decision to be made by the county executive and the county council.

Concerns — and Support

Although the city has long pressed for a legislative solution to the tax differential issue, city council members were not without their concerns about this bill. One concern was, in effect, that the bill does not sufficiently "cast in bronze" the differential for each municipality — that what a present county council might grant, a future less-sympathetic county council might take away. A second concern was that voters might mistakenly see the expected need for city council to raise city property tax rate as being a political issue.

But the overwhelming mood was one of support for the bill. City Manager James Giese told council that although the figures

"Town Meeting" at ERHS Drug Abuse Program To Study Teen Drug Use

Concerned parents and citizens are invited to a "Town Meeting" Wednesday, November 2, 8 p.m. at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. On the agenda will be a special T.V. presentation, "The Chemical People," and a discussion of this community problem with drugs and alcohol and possible solutions.

The "Chemical People" is a unique outreach project designed to combine the impact of television with the power of community action. In an effort to confront school-age drug abuse in communities across America, two one-hour PBS network broadcasts will be presented on November 2 and 9.

Before leaving the meeting on November 2, it is hoped that the group will agree to meet the next week to watch the second program and form a continuing task force.

The first program, "A Chemical Society," will detail the prevalence of student substance abuse according to a nationwide University of Michigan study sponsored by the National Institute of Drug Abuse. Hosted by First Lady Nancy Reagan, and co-hosted by several national celebrities, it will picture the emotional and physical toll that abuse takes on the users and their families.

Locally, the town meeting at Eleanor Roosevelt High is sponsored by Stayin' Alive, a school/community alcohol and other drugs abuse intervention and prevention committee chaired by the Rev. Edward Birner of Holy Cross Lutheran Church.

The meeting Wednesday evening will be chaired by Dr. Ri-

Drug Abuse Program

A two-part television program, The Chemical People, will be broadcast by PBS stations WETA (channel 26) and WHMM (channel 32) on November 2 and 9 at 8 p.m. The program addresses the drug and alcohol abuse problems of today's youth.

The first part, "A Chemical Society," will outline the scope of substance abuse. Hosted by Nancy Reagan, it will seek to convince viewers to accept the problem and organize to solve it rather than hide behind a "wall of denial."

The second part, "A Call to Action," will present guidelines for forming a task force that will be responsible for educating and motivating people to take action against drug and alcohol abuse. The program will blueprint how communities can form parent groups and use existing alliances to take specific local action.

The program is intended to serve as a plan for organizing a citizen task force to explore solutions and have ongoing activity that will continue after the series is aired. Interested individuals may contact Project Coordinators Ellen Kerszenewjg 998-2825 or 998-2822 and Kevin Douglass (202) 636-5216 for further information.

City Council Says "No" To Inter-County Connector

by Philip J. Hanyok

The Greenbelt City Council adopted a "no build" position for the Inter-County Connector (ICC) on Oct. 17, after reviewing an Advisory Planning Board (APB) report.

The ICC, a proposed highway connecting Interstate 270 and roads as far east as the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, is intended to eliminate deficiencies in traffic service in Montgomery and Prince Georges counties.

The "no-build" option allows for improvements of existing roads but no construction of the new highway. This portion is estimated to cost $2.3 million while construction under the other option could reach $250.7 million.

Based on a Draft Environmental Impact Statement considered by the APB, council felt this option would least adversely affect the Greenbelt area.

The "no-build" option was chosen over building the highway but terminating it at I-95 because council felt that once the road was constructed there might be future proposals to extend it east to the B-W parkway.

The ICC proposal, which council member Thomas X. White called a "dead horse" that keeps getting back up for another beating, is the remainder of a road originally planned in 1950. The State Highway Administration in 1980 recommended that the project be deleted from the 20-year capital transportation project budget in 1983 when studies are finished.

Greenway Center

Unique Shops, "Draw Factor" Add Up to Successful Year

by Philip J. Hanyok

Store merchants in the Greenway Center, which opened in 1980, generally agree that 1983 will be a good year because of the center's location, the clientele, and what Dart Drug's manager calls the "draw factor."

The draw factor is a term that means businesses draw customers into their stores and those customers in turn go to other stores in the center, according to Dart's manager, Theresa Beck.

The center is especially helped by the restaurants because they attract a lot of people. The other large stores also draw a lot of customers.

According to Beck, many people come to the center to do one thing or another and while they are there they stop into one of the other stores to purchase something they need around the house. Many of her customers come over from the Holiday health spa. "An awful lot of people who go to the health spa come here to get junk food," she said.

With the economy beginning to shape up, merchants expect that most retail stores are expected to do better this year, especially because of the center's unique shops, its location in a newer development in an area of growth. They point out also that the stores share information about business and even about regular shoplifters. Beck, who has served 12 years with Dart Drug, said the Safeway employees will alert her to watch out for certain shoplifters.

She also had praise for the Greenbelt Police Department, which she said made the center feel safer. Greenbelt police patrol the center and have given safety demonstrations at monthly merchant meetings.

Ron Lignelli, manager of the Safeway, said his store is doing better than expected. "The Supermarket benefits the other stores," he said. The Safeway, which was originally open for 24 hours a day and now has regular hours cut the night shift because it was not profitable enough.

Kemp Mill Record's manager, Glen Nozick, feels that the Greenbelt area is "ripe for development." "We are doing quite well considering two competitors are opening up nearby," he said.

Nozick, who trains future managers, feels that records are considered luxuries and that his store would be the first to "feel the crunch."

Although most store managers say business could be better, most agree that sales will pick up for Christmas and for the 1983 year they will finish in the black. They see growth in the future.

Dart Drug's manager said "Always look for growth. Business will go up with growth."

SOCCER NEWS

by Sue Cornelius

The two Greenbelt six-year-olds' teams played each other on October 22, and Greenbelt I beat Greenbelt II by a close score of 1-0. Jaime Brignoli scored the only goal of the game. The eight-year-olds' team played a great game against Cheverly, with Shawn Haines scoring Greenbelt's goal toward the end of the game, giving Greenbelt a 1-1 tie. Nice going, Shawn!

Last week it was reported that the 13-year-olds' team lost 5-1, when they actually won 1-0, on the penalty kick by Troy Altamore. Sorry for the error!

All the scheduled county games were cancelled due to rain. Results will be reported as soon as the games are replayed.

A special thanks to Valerie Ryan for helping to oversee and run the tables, the cheerleaders themselves who worked both at the tables and cheering the football games, and a special thank you to Coach Dave, without whose assistance we never would have had hot coffee.

New Video Store

National Video, Greenbelt's newest video store, opened up September 26 in Greenway Center. The chain's 400th store to open is owned and managed by Jon and Eileen Miller. She does the bookkeeping and works in the store, he manages the business and works in the store, a little, says Eileen.

Owners of VHS or Beta video recorders may rent tapes—latest movies released for home recorders and older films to see again. Miller describes his store as family-oriented. "You won't see any adult films on our shelves" he states. (They are there, but behind the counter in tan numbered boxes). Up near the front door is the children's collection—featuring Disney and other films.

Those who do not own a video recorder may rent one. A suitcase, average size and weight, carries the recorder and two films. Miller throws in a free bag of popcorn. He also has birthday packs for young children.

Greenbelters Win In Area Races

Dave O'Keeffe, 29, Lakeside Drive placed third in a field of 1600 runners on a very rainy October 23 in Georgetown 10K (6.2 mile) run in 31:07. The winner was Todd McAllister, 23, of Charlottesville, Va. 30:01. O'Keeffe has been under 30 minutes for this distance.

Jason Cunningham, 10, Plateau Place, a member of St. Hugh's cross country team, who had won a D.C. Road Runners 1.75 mile run in Greenbelt's National Park on October 16 in 17:05 came back a week later to place second in the CYO cross-country championships at the same location. Cunningham's time for 3K (1.86 miles) in the championships was 16:05 for second place in the 9-10 year old boys race. Brian Riva, 13, was second in 16:43 and J.F. Parsons, 13, was third in 17:08 in the 13-14 age group race of 4K or 2.48 miles, again in the pouring rain. Bruce Coulter, coach of St. Hugh's cross country team is taking the team to a meet north of Baltimore this Sunday.

In the featured D.C. Road Runners 5 mile championship race, Rubin Baerga, 20, of the U.S. Naval Academy led two other teammates in 26:24, quite an accomplishment on this hilly course and only 37 seconds over the course record. Dick Good led three Greenbelters in 30th place in 35:03 followed by Shalom Fisher 32nd in 35:29 and Bill Bishop 34th in 36:07.

The D.C. Road Runners hold distance races each week. The next Greenbelt area run is a 10 and a 20 mile race on Monday, December 26 at 10 a.m., which starts and finishes at Braden Field and goes out through the Agricultural Research Center. Further information on races and courses from Larry Noel 474-9362.

Usually Greenbelters run in either the New York marathon or the Marine Corps marathon. Running results phoned in to Larry Noel will be submitted to the News Review. (474-9362).

All costume materials should be flame retardant and short enough to prevent tripping. Use light colors or reflective tape for visibility. Carry a flashlight if available.

Girl Scout Troop 95

by Diane Oberg

The hardy (or foolhardy) hikers of Troop 95 set out in the rain on October 1 to explore the Spellman Overpass and east Greenbelt. On their return, the troop dined high over the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, then examined the Anna Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Tree. The day was brightened for the scouts by the numerous motorists who returned their waves. While hoping for better weather, the group viewed the rainy hike as preparation for their camping trip in late October to Stafford, Virginia.

The games are competitive, but they are friendly and fun. New players are still needed on several teams. If anyone would like to play, cheer, or just watch, come see Greenbelt's "over 18's" play soccer.

Community Church To Hold Bazaar

CONSIDERING A CHANGE IN RESIDENCE?

There are three key elements to consider:

- A) Your needs: things you positively have to have.
- B) Your wants: things you'd like to have, but don't necessarily need.
- C) Your qualifications:
 - 1) Your initial investment (cash to move in)
 - 2) Your total income (gross yearly income)
 - 3) Your debt service (total indebtedness)

I would like the opportunity to discuss with you how we can combine these three factors to assist you and your family in achieving your housing goals both within Greenbelt and the metropolitan area - of course with no obligation.

Council Tidbits

by Bill Rowland

Greenbelt's city council, during its regular meeting on October 17, encountered the following topics:

— City Manager James Giese reported a tangled impasse with county agencies and with developers regarding improvements to Hanover Parkway within the city limits. According to Giese, the county has started to extend the road southward, but is refusing to bring the job up to city standards. At the same time, a couple of developers are balking at keeping agreements made with the city by earlier owners of their land, whereby specified improvements would be made to Hanover Parkway at developer expense. With County Councilmember Richard Castaldi present and joining in the discussion, city council agreed to send protest letters to key officials within the county government, the county council, and the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC).

— Giese also reported that county staff has not yet kept its agreement, requested by the city, whereby the "Tax Incremental Financing" (TIF) district, originally set up to finance the Hanover Parkway extension, would be extended to provide funds also for construction of access to the Metrorail and commuter rail stations. Council agreed to express its concern to County Executive Parris Glendening and ask him for early resolution.

— Council learned that the city may be getting short-changed in its representation on the citizens committee being set up to advise M-NCPPC on the new master plan for the Greenbelt/College Park/Langley Park area. There were indications that Greenbelt would be allowed only one representative (whereas council and organizations within the city have recommended four persons for membership); and that developers may be gaining an excessive amount of representation. Council withheld definite action until it can get more facts, but directed Giese to tell M-NCPPC staff that the city is very upset and will be sending forward further thoughts on the subject.

Police Blotter

There have been two incidents in the Springhill Lake area of a man attempting to get children into his car. Residents are requested to alert their children and to report suspicious persons to the department at once. The suspect is described as a white male in his 20s, light hair, thin mustache, stocky build and possibly operating a Ford T-Bird, 4-door blue dented vehicle with white top. If this person or vehicle is observed, please call the police department immediately at 474-5454.

Two vandalism incidents to parked autos were reported on October 18. One took place in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace and the other on the 8 Court of Crescent Road.

An apartment in the 6000 block of Cherrywood Court was entered by way of a broken window and several items were stolen.

An attempt was made to enter an apartment in the 9200 block of Springhill Lake at 4:53 a.m. on October 21. However, as a result of the resident calling this department, the suspect was apprehended at the scene and later released when complainant declined to prosecute due to the incident being domestic related.

Young Soloists to Perform With P.G. Symphony

The Prince Georges Symphony will begin its 1983-84 concert season with a classical concert featuring piano concerto numbers by young soloists. The concert, conducted by Frederick Morden, will be held Saturday, October 29 at 8 p.m. at Roosevelt High School auditorium. There will be an admission fee.

(Castaldi told the News Review that he was aware of this issue, and that county council — which must confirm appointments to the committee — would be considering the matter.)

— On request by Councilmember Antoinette Bram, council agreed that city staff should look into ways in which the city might appropriately recognize Maryland's 350th Anniversary.

Elementary School Substitutes Sought

Applicants for elementary school substitute positions must have graduated from high school at least two years ago. Applicants with a college degree or those who are pursuing a planned program in college studies will be given priority consideration.

GHI Board Initiates Plans to Eliminate Structural Problems in Masonry Units

by Mavis Fletcher

Decisions concerning the next steps to be taken to alleviate the structural problems in the masonry units occupied most of the attention of the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. Board of Directors during the Oct. 6 meeting. Lyon Associates, the firm retained to survey 17 buildings in which the structural damage appears to be most severe, had presented their findings and recommendations to the board on Sept. 21 at an open meeting. Along with their report, they provided a set of specifications and drawings for the necessary repair work.

The first decision the board had to make was a determination about the role of Lyons Associates in the survey of the remaining 107 buildings. A motion to retain Lyon Associates to do this work at a cost of $40,152 drew a tie vote (Directors Lewis, Williams, Volk and Hartwick in support of the motion; Directors Jenkins, Gervasi, Cantwell and Dombrowski opposed). President Margaret Hogensen cast the deciding vote in support of retaining Lyon.

A 4-4 division among the directors showed up again on a second question concerning the role of this firm. Management, represented at this meeting by Assistant General Manager Gary Morningstar, had requested authority to retain Lyon Associates on a hourly basis to help with inspections during the construction phase. Again the board was divided and Hogensen voted to support the management request. On this vote Lewis, Williams, Volk and Dombrowski supported the motion with Jenkins, Gervasi, Cantwell and Hartwick opposed. A $4,000 cap was put on payments to Lyon under this authority.

The board however, refused to authorize a $96,430 contract with Lyon Associates to conduct a community-wide drainage area survey. According to Lyon's findings the major problem causing structural damage is adverse grading near the foundation walls; the report suggests that regrading in many sections of the community will be necessary to ensure positive drainage of surface water away from the foundation walls. In order to do this on a comprehensive basis and simultaneously institute a continuing monitoring and maintenance program, Lyon recommended that a community-wide drainage study be undertaken. According to Management's explanation, such a study can be done under the framework of rehab and a drainage monitoring and maintenance program can be carried out over the next five years to ensure that the main cause of structural damage is alleviated throughout the community.

The board balked, however, at handing out a contract of this size without getting bids. As Cantwell put it, "We have an obligation to the members" (to get the best price). Management was therefore instructed unanimously to look at optional ways to get the study done and to come back to the board with other proposals.

Timetable

The board, still wrestling with the problem of structural damage to masonry homes, then considered a management timetable for actually performing the corrective work recommended by Lyon Associates. The work will start when the remaining 107 buildings have been surveyed. Contracts are scheduled to be let by the end of December. Under rehab, the work must be completed by next June.

The timetable as presented by Morningstar included the injection of lime slurry around the buildings which were judged to have the most severe damage. Other work to be done includes excavation of footing drain outlets, repair of gutters, downspouts and floor drains water-blasting repair of exterior walls, pressure grouting of cracks, grading and painting. The board appeared to be unsure about the value of the lime slurry injection but, by consensus, agreed to authorize management to proceed with obtaining bids; the lime slurry injection was to be costed separately.

Turning to other business the board decided unanimously to host the annual conference of the Eastern Cooperative Housing Organization in 1984. The board also agreed to finance the cash purchase payment for the small boiler room at 16-Z-2 Ridge Rd. The board also decided to paint the metal crawl space access doors in 124 masonry buildings with a non-skid, textured paint. The need for such action grew out of a recent accident in which a member fell and was injured. The work will be performed by maintenance personnel.

Member Queries

Among members who appeared before the board, Hilda Yontz, who intends to put insulating siding on her home to aid a heating deficiency raised the question of using vertical siding. She also asked for guidance about insulating the floors which, according to a Pepco energy survey, have almost no insulating effect. The question of the acceptability of vertical siding was referred to the Aesthetics and Environment Committee; the question of crawl space and slab insulation was referred to the Engineering and Maintenance Committee.

Members Evelyn Feller and Joe Remenick both spoke on the animal control problem. Feller expressed concern about a report that the postal service may deliver mail only to a bank of mailboxes at the entrance to each court because of the danger posed to mail carriers by unconfined dogs. She strongly urged that the number of pets per household be limited and that dogs be confined to the garden side of the residences thus allowing free and safe access to the service side for mail carriers and other service personnel. Director Don Volk pointed out that the city is considering various animal control proposals and he and Director Wayne Williams suggested that GHI efforts should be consistent with the city measures. Since Audit Committee member Katherine Keene is also a member of the city's Community Relations Advisory Board, it was agreed that she should be asked to attend the city council work session on Oct. 24 and report back.

Among items of information, the board received a 6-month demographic report which showed that of the persons moving into GHI from Jan.-July 1983, almost 50% were single, were between 20-30 years old and 45% had incomes between $20,000 and $30,000 per year. The number of units sold in that time period was 119.

provided by Glendening are only preliminary and subject to revision, this would be a very significant change for Greenbelt. He expressed his feeling that the present county government and executive are receptive to the kind of negotiation and bargaining provided for in this bill, and that it would be difficult politically for a future county government to undo what gets agreed upon now. Giese, noting that the Prince Georges County Municipal Association had unanimously supported the draft legislation, recommended that council also express its support. (Both Giese and Mayor Gil Weidenfeld were very actively involved within the Municipal Association in developing the tax differential approach that is used in the draft legislation.)

Weidenfeld pointed out that the city received only about $350,000 from the county last year as a partial rebate for duplicate services, whereas under the proposed new law the city's property owners could expect to pay out something like $900,000 less in annual property taxes.

State Delegate Gerard Devlin appeared before city council to urge support of the bill. He said he thinks the county plan will be good for Greenbelt, and that it will provide an incentive for the municipalities to improve their services.

County councilmember Richard Castaldi, also attending the city meeting, said this is the first time in 20 years that the municipalities have seen such an opening. He agreed the city might not get exactly what it wants from the county but said that city council should be willing to take its chances with this bill because the opportunity might never come around again.

The city council voted unanimously to express its support of the proposed tax legislation to county council.

What Next?

Glendening foresees that property owners in unincorporated parts of the county will initially have as lightly lowered county tax rate when the new plan is in effect. However, this decrease would be a result not of the tax differential legislation, but rather of the TRIM limitation on county tax revenues. Elected officials representing unincorporated areas have already begun to complain about the proposed bill because of the added tax burden it could be expected to place on their constituents when the municipalities are no longer subsidizing county services for those constituents.

Thus, some degree of political struggle regarding the bill is inevitable. But with a clear majority of the county councilmembers representing municipalities,

The banquet was hosted and expenses paid by the Greenbelt Legion compliments of Commander Sam Hofberg.

Best wishes for a happy birthday to Richard Castaldi, Prince Georges County councilman and former Greenbelt mayor, who celebrated his 39th birthday on October 24.

Airman Michael J. Massicotte, son of Francis R. Massicotte of Breezewood Court, has been assigned to Lowry Air Force Base, passage of the bill (perhaps with amendments) seems likely.

The proposed legislation would not relieve city property owners from a tax for recreation services. The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission controls the property tax rates for that service and no tax differential is yet in sight there.

GHI NOTES

This Thursday, October 27, at 8 p.m., GHI will hold a membership hearing on the proposed budget for 1984. The meeting will be held in the City Council Chambers.

Two committees will meet on Tuesday, November 1 at 8 p.m. The Finance Committee will meet in the Board Room and the Engineering and Maintenance Committee will meet in the Lunch Room.

GHI will offer free blood pressure testing on Thursday, November 3 from 2 to 4 p.m. Please note the change in day for November.

The Board of Directors will meet on Thursday, November 3 at 8 p.m. in the Board Room. GHI members are always welcome to attend regular meetings of the Board of Directors.

Members of block homes are advised to wait until their homes are inspected this spring before doing any outside painting. These homes may need structural repairs which would require water-blasting the surface of the block even if it has been newly painted.

Members are reminded that the Maintenance Office is open 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. It is best to make requests for regular maintenance early in the day on weekdays by calling 474-6011. For emergency service at other times, members may call 474-6011 and an answering service will take a message and refer the emergency to the maintenance after-hours staff member.

Energy Management Workshops will resume on Thursday, November 10 at 8 p.m. in the Board Room. This workshop will focus on "Ways to Reduce Your Electric Bill." Members are encouraged to complete the energy management survey in the GHI Newsletter so that future workshops can be planned.
